Hunting guns, or even lions, is a much easier African problem than the one Mr. Jeffries has on his hands.

A review of the business outlook says "the entire aspect of the agricultural situation is propitious." Another year of good crops ought to beat last year's $7,000,000,000 record.

Under a new law, gun-toting in Missouri may be punished by a sentence of two years in the penitentiary. It is so feasible not to carry a pistol that the penalty need cause no excitement.

An order has been received from the government zoo at Copenhagen for a dozen of the fleetest specimens of the Kansas Jack rabbit. Denmark must be contemplating a change from profound deliberation to intense activity.

Mr. Bryan filled three columns of his paper in trying to prove that Secretary of War Dickinson is not a democrat. Now let Mr. Bryan devote several pages to defining a democrat. An autobiography would simply describe a popocrat.

A New Jersey man recently refused to move his animal rendering plant to a more isolated spot. One of his neighbors has started a skunk farm nearby for spite. The result is that an important public road which passes these properties is closed because persons traveling along it find it impossible to stand the combination of odors which are wafted by the breezes that blow in that vicinity. Some men are assuredly most curious critics.

At the present price of wheat and corn it wouldn't pay the owner of a good farm to spend his time at the store to hear the latest bulletins from Mars.

The gun is a combination of three animals with the donkey predominant. It is strange that Mr. Bryan overlooked it in the course of his many fustions.

Uncle Sam may have to assume control of Cuban affairs. Cuba has demonstrated her ability to stand, but she seems to make slow progress in learning to walk.

Persons who held their wheat on tips furnished by Mr. Patten in interviews realize now that he reserved his really important information for personal use.

As a prisoner in the hands of parliament, Abdul Hamid would find it of advantage to make a study of the mistakes of Charles I of England under similar circumstances.

The new sultan of Turkey, Mohammed V, has but two wives. At the present price of Paris hats this change at the palace is an immense stroke of Imperial economy.

In the state of Washington, Skagit county, has engaged in publicity work, the Dawamish waterway is taking shape and the farmers of Emunclaw have organized. Washington is doing its best to preserve the melody of its Indian dialects.

A writer in the London Times predicts that in 1912 England will probably have "at most, five small-sized slow, nonrigid airships, which, as compared with the Zeppelins, will be as antiquated cruisers to Dreadnoughts." The Thunderer of old was not accustomed to take such tremors as this seriously.

What's the answer? The number of members of that organization known as the Daughters of the American Revolution has reached a total of 53,024 and is increasing at the rate of about 6,000 a year. The number of men who fought in the revolutionary army was never more than 5,000 and averaged about 3,000, and many of them were bachelors.

Among the game brought down by the African hunting party is a Thompson's gazelle. For the sake of good sport it is hoped that this animal has more intelligence than Thompson's colt.

If the sultan out of a job will master the English language he will be sure of a long engagement in the lecture field. But Artemus Ward got ahead by making his tickets read: "Admit bearer and one wife."

The proposition that Boston should celebrate on a grand scale the 300th Pilgrim anniversary in 1920 leads ex governor Guild to say: "That we never have had a world's exposition at Boston is no reason why we never should have one." St. Louis advises Boston to go in and win second place, which would be no slight honor.

Rudyard Kipling thinks that Mr. Roosevelt may possibly pull through the African hunting trip with nothing worse than a bad liver. Mr. Kipling ought to reflect that a degenerate liver is apt to demoralize the temper.

Now that the crusade for the removal of women's hats in the theaters has succeeded, it will be in order for some brave man to suggest that the ladies be required to remove the great wads of false hair which are so popular with them these days. Even the largest hats were not as successful in obscuring the view of the stage as are many of the latest coiffures.
